Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over applicants' acknowledged state of the art or the Japanese patent document 11-192671 in view of Felter et al. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are not deemed persuasive. Applicants argue that there is no motivation to modify the primary references' articles in view of Felter and that Felter fails to disclose or suggest applying his wear layer on a urethane resin like that disclosed in the primary reference. However, Felter teaches applying a cover layer over an elastic, i.e. resilient, flooring laminate in order to provide a simulated wood grain. Therefore, the motivation to combine Felter with the primary references is to produce an elastic or resilient flooring with a decorative wood grain finish. The fact that the prior art suggests a combination of references for reasons different than that of applicant does not overcome the obvious rejection. Applicants' further argue that Felter fails to suggest applying his cover layer on a urethane resin. However, the broad teaching in Felter of applying his covering layer to any resilient or rubber flooring layer would suggest application of the covering layer to any resilient flooring layer, such as a urethane flooring laminate as disclosed in the primary references. Concerning the discussion related to claims 3 and 4, Felter discloses applying a pattern between the substrate and the cover layer; see for example column 3, lines 47-58, column 5, lines 3-13, etc. Regarding the discussion of a polyamide as the protection layer, Felter does not limit his cover layer to PVC and it is well within the purview of one of ordinary skill in the art select any well known material for the cover layer that is compatible with the layer to which it is to be laminated.

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
